A SMALL BOY FRIGHTENED TO DEATH BY A GANG OF HIS COMPANIONS. Pritisbung, Jan. 16 .- A special to the Post from Clarion, Pa., says: About two weeks ago a twelveyear-old son of Levi Kahi, of Elk township, while on his way home from church, was so badly fright-ened by a gang of older boys that he died from the effects yesterday. At a lonely point in the road, which had lately been the subject of much gossip, because it was said that the locality was haunted, the heartless young rufflans hid. One of them se-cured the stump of a tree which had been torn from the ground and from which the roots, branching in all directions when carried upon his head, gave him the appearance of a many ho ned monster. Another armed himself with a revolver, and still another with a club. As young Kahl reached the "haunted" spot his tormentors sprang from their hiding place and confronted him. Naturally the heavy are terribly frightened at the apparition the boy was terribly frightened at the apparition and its companions, and as soon as he could re-cover sufficiently started to run. They soon overtook him, however, and in his presence the "de-mon" took the revolver and shot one or two of the others down in their tracks. At least, when he shot, one of the others feil, conveying to the boy renewed terror. They continued to persecute him in this manner until near his home, when he broke away and reached his father's fireside in a sad state of nervous prostration and mental terror.
All efforts to convince him that he had not seen the demon proved unsuccessful. He gradually grew worse and died yesterday in great agony.

TWO OF THE BABIES JOINED TOGETHER, BUT NOT AS CLOSELY AS THE SIAMESE TWINS. SAN ANTONIO, TEX., Jan. 16 .- Joe Cochran is an able-bodied, full-blooded negro of thirty years. He is one of triplets, and both his brothers are living. He is married to a negress about twenty years oid, also full blooded, whose name is Anna Watkins. On Wednesday Anna gave birth to three children, two boys and a girl. They have taken kindly to the bottle and are thriving. The girl baby is very nearly the average size, the boys are each some-thing smaller. These two boys came into the world together for the sufficient reason that from world together for the sufficient reason that from the shoulder to the elbow they are closely joined. They have two heads, two necks, two forearms, two bodies, and four legs, but are indissolubly joined for life. So far as they have afforded opportunity for observation, they are of two separate minds and temperaments. The pains and wants of one do not affect the other. They are exact duplicates in form and feature. They have been visited by a large number of curlosity-lovers, male and female, white and colored, the ladies especially going into ecstacles over the "little ducks." The twins appear to have every chance of living.

Bull Fighting in Texas. THE SAVAGE MEXICAN SPORT FINDS ITS WAY ACROSS THE RIO GRANDE.

St. Louis, Dec. 16.-A special from Laredo, Tex., this side of the river opened here Friday, and were largely attended. The animals had been brought from Lasalle County for the especial purpose, and were a savage lot of beasts. The fighters were the same company who recently closed an engage-ment in Nuevo Laredo, and are up in their business. This afternoon, soon after the first bull was let into the ring, he made a savage lunge at a picador, who, in an endeavor to stop the rush of pleador, who, in an endeavor to stop the rush of the mad animal with his spear, was unhorsed, and his horse gored to death in the arena. Stanton and McClellan.

THE SECRETARY OF WAR EXPLAINS WHY M'DOWELL'S

The St. Paul Dispatch publishes a communicadant, Rev. Herman Dyer, as to the removal of Gen. McClellan from the command of the Army of the Potomae. The letter explains the action of Mr. Stanton in directing McDowell's command to remain in defense of the national capital. The letter says that when McClellan's force was about to be transferred to Fortress Monroe it was discovered that the force left to defend the national capital was less than 20,000 raw recruits with not a single organized brigade. The best military men apital was less than 20,000 raw recruits with not single organized brigade. The best military men agreed in opinion that Washington was not safe, and President Lincoln thereupon directed the Sec-retary, by written orders, to retain one of the army corps for the defense of the capital. The blizzard reached Northern Texas Saturday to the Globe-Democrat, says: The bull fights on afternoon, and the mercury fell from 40 to 65 degrees, reaching almost to zero at some points. The latest dispatches received at St. Paul from points in the Northwest indicate that the loss of life in the awful blizzard of last week will be over one hundred. Mr. Chambers was on foot and each of the and Johnny undertook to drive the cattle home They were soon bewildered and lost. Johnny, who lived through the storm and is not so badly frozen as at first represented, tells what followed. He says that when his father said they were lost he made a place in the snow for him and wrapped him up the best he could. They had no overcoats. Johnny says that he was so covered up that he was warm. His father went out and called, and their dog barked, but no answer came. Then the father and the dog got into the snow beside him. While he was warm, he knew that his father was getting very cold. He urged his father to go out and find the trees, and then he could make the ouse, but the father said: "No, I cannot go and Through the long night they had conversations about perishing, but the father kept assuring the boy that they would get through all right if he would only lie still. The boy knew his father was would only lie still. The boy knew his father was freezing, but was quite comfortable and finally fell to sleep. When he awoke it was nearly morning. His father was still alive, and discovering that Johnny was awake the father said to him: "Now, Johnny, you pray and I will pray, and then I know God will take you through all right." They prayed as proposed, and soon after his father was dead. The boy was entirely covered up, except a little breathing place through the snow, and he laid still. The dog stood sentry and afforded the cue by which the body was found soon after daylight by a searching party. Johnny thinks his father had not been dead more than an hour when they wer; found. The boy's hands and hour when they were found. The boy's hands and feet are only slightly frozen.

They were assigned to a handsomely furnished room, and nothing more was heard of them until about 6 o'clock, when the man appeared in the passage-way, announced to the keeper of the house that his companion was ill, and then left the house, saying he would send a physician. Dr. Hitch-cock arrived in a few miuntes, but in less than five minutes after his arrival the woman died. The body, which lay on the floor, was part-ly disrobed, and scattered about on chairs in the room were a sealskin sacque, a rich brown slik dress and various other articles of ap-parel of the most expensive character. In the ears of the corpse flashed a pair of magnificent solitaire diamond earrings, and on the fingers were a wedding ring and two band and diamond rings. In the pocket of her dress $43 and four gold studs were found. The coroner, after learning the cir-cumstances and examining the body, pronounced the cause of death fatty degeneration of the heart. The woman's male companion did not return with the physician. The house in which the Parmelees reside, No. 327 Jefferson avenue, Brooklyn, is a magnificent four-story brownstone structure, and is elegantly furnished throughout, giving every evidence of the opulence and culture of its occu-pants. Bernal, the Bandit.

ROMANTIC CAREER OF THE MOST INTERESTING OUT-LAW THAT MEXICO HAS PRODUCED. ence of the Chicago Tribune. Official confirmation has been received of the Louise Parmelee, wife of Edward Parmelee, of No. killing of Eraclio Bernal, the famous bandit. bandit of the many that this republic has pro-duced. His name was a greater terror to the de-lenseless inhabitants of the Sierras than was the name of Attila to the ancient Romans. Bernal was born at Moeria, Sinaloa, in the year 1850. He was consequently thirty-eight years old at the time of his death. He in his early manhood bore the reputation of a law-abiding and hard-working the reputation of a law-abiding and hard-working citizen. About twelve years ago he was tried and convicted of a crime of which he was said to be innocent. He escaped from prison, swearing that the authorities if they ever caught him again would be really justified in condemning him to prison. He became a highwayman, and by the boldness of his misdeeds and the skill displayed in carrying them out soon became notorious. He gathered around him a band of men of a like desperate character, who under his leadership terrorized most of the districts of Sinaloa and Durango. At first he limited himself to attacks on the dispences or stage-coaches, but he soon increased in boldness and would present himself before a hactenda or village and levy tribute on the citizens. If his terms were refused he would attack and piliage the place, carry off all the booty, and if a med resistance were offered he would attack and piliage the place, carry off all the booty, and if a med resistance were offered he would not hesitate to murder the people. It is claimed that the bold outlaw never kined men wilfully, or for the mere pleasure of killing, but only when resistance was made to his demands or when it was necessary for his own safety.
His capture had been often announced, but a few days later a denial of the news has invariably fol-lowed. The state and tederal authorities finally decided to make a determined and continuous ef-fert to pursue Mexico's "Fra Diavolo" until he should be captured or killed and his band of rob-bers exterminated. For over two years the troops have scoured the mountains of Sinaloa, have pene-trated into almost inaccessible fastnesses among the rocks, and trailed the outlaws through the dense forests. Many were the conflicts between the troops and the banditti, but the former were generally victorious. Many of Bernal's companions were captured and shot, but the ubiquitous Eracho silp.

He was of a jovial disposition, but at times he was filled with melanchoty as he thought of his miserable past and hopeless future. During these repentant moments he would swoop down on the nearest village to attend the parish church, and while the trembling priest chanted the mass Bernal and his picturesque band in the background would devoutly cross themselves and recate their prayers. A special to the N. Y. World from Ottawa, Ont., January 14, says: An invasion of British territory by officers of the United States in pursuit of two escaped prisoners, in violation of international law, as reported to the Dominion governmen from Sault Ste, Marie, Ont., is likely to bring about further complications between the United States and the Dominion. On Monday two men remanded to jail on the Michigan side of Sault Ste. Marie escaped and crossed over to the Canadian side. The sheriff and constable, all officers of Chippewa County, Mich., followed in pursuit, and announced their intention of forcibly taking the prisoners back with them. In the meantime the two refugees went to the magistrate of the town and offered to surrender themselves to the Canadian authorities, but they were told there was no case against them. On stepping into the street one of the men was selzed, violently thrown to the ground, and handcuffed, and then pitched into a sleigh, and rapidly driven across the ice to the American side. It is understood that the Dominion government will at once lay the case before the authorities at Washington, and an application be made for the return of the abducted man to Canadian territory. from Sault Ste, Marie, Ont., is likely to bring abou

President Carnot and His Family.

Paris Letter to the London Queen.

The new president and his family are now in stalled at the Elysee, in the apartments lately vacated by M. and Mme. Grevy. They are situated in the left wing of the palace, and the windows overlook the garden. Mme. Carnot has made no interruption in her receptions, and is at home this afternoon at the Elysee, as, in the old order of them two who have been in their service for many years.

M. Carnot, sr., who formerly professed Saint-Simonian opinions, had trades taught to both his sons. The president is a carpenter and his younger brother a locksmith. For the same reason he has never assumed the title of count, which is his by right of inheritance, the "great Carnot" having been ennobled by Napoleon I. In any case the president is not a vicomte, as has been assumed, second titles having not been awarded by imperial decree to the eldest sons, who could only inherit that of their father, though in many cases this rule has been infringed. M. Carnot is by far the youngest of the four presidents who have reigned at the Elysee. M. Thiers was seventy-four. Marshal MacMahon sixty-four, and M. Grevy sixty-five at the time of their elections. The previous innabitants of the Elysee were the Marquis de Pompadour, the financier Beaujon, the Duchesse de Bourbon, Napoleon I, King Murat, the Duc and Duchesse de Berry, and Louis Napoleon before he became emperor. To celebrate his election President Carnot gave the schoolboys a day's holiday, which will be taken at Christmas time, and increase their short outing from three to four days. He married while young the daugnter of the Economist Dupont White, who brought him some fortune. They have four children, three sons and a daughter—now the wife of an advocate-general at Dijoa, M. Cunisset. One of the sons is a sub-lieutenant of loisact, and the same and the suddent of the lieutenant of loisact. a daughter—now the wife of an advocate-general at Dijon, M. Cunisset. One of the sons is a sublicutenant of infantry, another is a student of the Ecole des Mines, and the third is still at schol, a day boarder of the Lycee Janson at Passy, where the house of which M. and Mme. Sadi Carnot inhabit the third-floor flat is situated. They have not yet removed to the Elysee, and will not do so for some days, as it is necessary to make a few alterations and repairs in the private apartments of terations and repairs in the private apartments of the presidential palace. It is questionable whether Parisian society will have gained much by the change. President Carnot, though in the prime of life, does not care for general society, and Mine. Carnot is not prominent in fashionable circles, though a woman of refined taste and pleasing manners. Their apartments in the Budge Resides are set of the control of t the Rue des Bassins are handsomely and comfortably furnished, and there is a certain artistic arrangement in the smaller of the two drawing-rooms, wherein she was in the habit of drawing-rooms, wherein she was in the habit of receiving every Tuesday afternoon. Her late father, M. Dupont Wnite, professed liberal republicanism, but was a great admirer of the liberal institutions of England. One of the minor duties of Mme, Carnot's new position will be the direction of a sewing class, installed by the Duchesse de Magenta at the Elysee, where the baby linen is made which is presented, with a bank note of 50 francs, to a certain number of poor mothers annually to whose infants the president

A Crusade Against Cigarettes.

From the Albany Argus.
A crusade against cigarette smoking has been inaugurated along the Hudson River, and what is termed "a moral boycott" is the instrument used to bring about the desired result. Physicians say the number of cases of serious illness traceable to the pernicious effects of cigarette smoking is very large, and that it is high time to call a halt. Re-suits of the crusade can be seen in Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburg, &c., where signs are dis-played.

on New Year's Day the prime movers in the crusade began doubling their efforts. The movement is being warmly indorsed by clergymen, educators and others.

Avalanches and Snowslides. OME OF THE WINTER PERILS TO BE ENCOUNTERED "OUT WEST." From the New York Star.

Says Mr. George W. Seaver, a resident of Colorado, now in this city, relative to Western winter experiences in the mountains of Colorado: "Just before I left home we had the first of our winter pests. I refer to the snowslides. In Colorado there are two distinct kinds of snowslides—the snowslide and the avalanche. The snowslide occurs when a dry fall of snow has covered the steep side of the mountains and passes. The snow, under these conditions, literally slides until it strikes a lower and more level space. Such a disturbance is inconvenient, as it blocks wagons and railroads, but is seldom attended with disastrous consequences, as the snow is so light and soft the strikes a lower and more level space. Such a disturbance is inconvenient, as it blocks wagons and railroads, but is seidom attended with disastrous consequences, as the snow is so light and soft that it divides on encountering any obstacle, such as a house, without carrying it away. Its motion, also, is so gradual that a man in its track can easily find means of getting out of the way, and, even if he were caught, could escape without injury.

"The avalanche, on the other hand," Mr. Seaver went on to say, "is far more dangerous. For the formation of an avalance snow more or less moist is necessary, and also a hard-frozen base upon which the snow rests. A heavy fall succeeding a cold snap is nearly certain to accasion avalanches, and these are most disastrous. Instead of slipping slowly and easily along in a soft, porous mass, the snow balls and rushes down the mountain side with irresistible force and at a terrific speed. Trees and rocks are torn and incorporated in the rushing mass, and whatever comes in its way has to vield. Unlike the snow-slide, the avalanche, when once it has gathered headway, is not stopped by any level space of ordinary extent, but rushes across a plain several hundred yards in width and plunges down the mountain side beyond. When an avalanche occurs in the neighborhood of a pass snow usually fills it up to a depth of from 40 to 50 feet, and is not cleared out until spring, unless a very large force of men is put to work to make a pathway. It is no uncommon thing for a mining camp to be cut off from communication with the outside world for weeks at a time by one of these avalanches, and the suffering from want of food and fue is often extreme. The only way to establish communication is by a line of courlers on snows hoes, and these men are in constant danger of their lives, as in passing along the track of an avalanche, and these men are in constant danger of their lives, as in passing along the track of an avalanche, and these men are in constant danger of their lives as in passing alon of crossing the avalanche-covered passes in Are Indian Jockeys the Best! From the Sportsman.

Plute Indian jockeys, who created such a sensation at Stockton, Cal., last fall will have to look to their laurels, as some British Columbia Indians are after the position of premier riders among the ab-origines. On this point Victorian (B. C.) advices say that as jockey rivers the Flathead Indians and their relations have, perhaps, no equal on earth. Raised as they are from childhood almost on a Raised as they are from childhood almost on a pony's back, so to speak, it is no wonder they become superior equestrians. When preparing for a race, the young bucks skin themselves of their clothing, so as to present as little resistance to the air as possible. A Flathead jockey mounted for business is dressed in nothing more than a breech clout and, perhaps, a thin cotton shirt, which floats in the breeze, but offers no impediment to the rider or horse. Leaning forward on their hardy little cayuses, they dash down the race-course like the wind, jumping ditches and dodging trees with a precision and skill truly marvelous. The white man's race-course is a flat, level stretch of ground, rolled smooth, over which the animal simply runs, while the rider has nothing much to do except to hold his seat. On the other hand, an Indian will race over any kind of ground, among timber or swimming streams, combining with the simple speed of his animal individual skill and judgment in surmounting a score of obstacles, and always coming under the wire ahead. A white man seldom wins a race from an Indian, and there is no winder
